In opposition to this Mr. Scott Russell submits: 1. That iron steamships-of-war may be built as strong as wooden ships of greater weight, and stronger than wooden ships of equal weight. 2. That iron ships of equal strength can go on less draught of water than wooden ships. 3. That they are more durable. 4. That they are safer against the sea. 5. That they are safer against fire. 6. That they are much safer against explosive shells. 7. That they are 9. That they can be made impregnable even

> COMMENCEMENT OF CAMP MEETINGS .- Of the origin of camp meetings, the New York Evangelist says: The first camp meeting held in America was in Kentucky. Two preachere-one a Presbyterian, and the other a Methodist-met in a village, on the Sabbath, where there was but one church. The Presbyterian officiated in the forenoon, and the Methodist in the afternoon. The interest upon the subject was so great that they continued the meetings for a day or two at the house. The attendance soon became so large that they adjourned to the woods, and continued the meeting for a week. And this is the origin of the modern camp meeting.

> The Montgomery Mail advises the people of Charleston, in case a war ensues, not to allow the dead Yankees to be buried in their cemeteries, but to bury them about twenty them up, and thus enrich the soil with their dust, so that cotton will grow on it.
